COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Russell Bradberry ("Bradberry"), on behalf of himself, a class and a subclass, brings this class action against mBlox, Inc. ("mBlox") seeking to stop Defendant's practice of causing cellular telephone customers to be billed for mobile content services that the customers did not order, and to obtain redress for all persons injured by their conduct. Plaintiff, for his class action complaint, alleges as follows upon personal knowledge as to himself and his own acts and experiences, and, as to all other matters, upon information and belief, including investigation conducted by his attorneys.

NATURE OF THE CASE

- I. The increased use of cell phones has given rise to a new industry that provides so-called "mobile content" services such as ringtones, text alerts, jokes, news, games, and daily horoscopes to cell phone users' mobile devices. The providers of mobile content (the mobile "content providers") charge for their services and cause such charges to be placed directly on customers' cell phone accounts through their wireless carriers (the "carriers"). The carriers then bill and collect such amounts, serving as partners in these transactions, retaining a portion of all revenue that they collect on account of mobile content services.
- 2. Because mobile content providers are typically unable to establish a direct billing and content delivery relationship with the carriers, they most often turn to one of a handful of companies known in the industry as "aggregators," such as mBlox, that act as billing intermediaries without whom the mobile content providers would generally be unable to provide and bill for their mobile content services.
- 3. While aggregators such as mBlox charge their content provider clients some upfront fees, their revenue is primarily generated through a "revenue share" on transactions for which they bill the carriers' customers: each time a charge is incurred in connection with an alleged purchase of mobile content services offered by a content provider, the aggregator and the content provider cause the charge to be billed directly on the cellular telephone bill of the carrier's customer who currently owns and/or uses the telephone number claimed to be associated with that purchase.

- 4. The carrier then bills and collects the charges from its current customer, retains about 20% to 50% of the proceeds as its "revenue share" and then remits the balance to the aggregator, i.e., mBlox, who retains a percentage of the balance in the form of its own "revenue share" and who then remits the balance to its content provider client.
- 5. In a widespread industry practice little known by those outside the industry, but known to Defendant, carriers such as AT&T Mobility, LLC d/b/a Cingular Wireless ("Cingular"), Cellco Partnership d/b/a Verizon Wireless ("Verizon"), Sprint-Nextel Corporation ("Sprint") and T-Mobile USA, Inc. ("T-Mobile"), among many others, routinely "recycle" so-called "dirty" telephone numbers to their customers when they sign up for new cellular telephone service. The numbers are "recycled" in that they were previously owned and/or used by other persons or entities. The numbers are "dirty" in that they are encumbered with pre-existing billing obligations for products and services authorized to be purchased, if at all, by the previous owners and/or users of those numbers.
- 6. Despite its knowledge about the problem of recycled dirty numbers, Defendant has helped create a system through which cell phone users are billed for mobile content services ordered not by them, but by the previous owners of their cell phone numbers.
- 7. As a result, for years Defendant has systematically, repeatedly and without authorization caused charges to be placed on the cell phone bills of thousands of consumers across the country for content that was never authorized to be purchased by the current owners of the affected phone numbers, but rather, if at all, by the previous owners of such cell phone numbers, and it has profited enormously from its wrongful conduct, in violation of: (a) the common law of unjust enrichment; (b) the common law of tortious interference with a contract; and (c) in violation of California Business and Professions Code section 17200 consumer fraud provisions.

8. Plaintiff seeks on behalf of himself and the class members, money damages, disgorgement, injunctive and declaratory relief, costs, and reasonable attorney's fees.

PARTIES

- 9. Plaintiff Russell Bradberry is a citizen of California.
- 10. Defendant mBlox, Inc. ("mBlox"), known in the industry as an "aggregator." is a provider of mobile payments processing and is self-described as the "world's largest mobile transactions network." mBlox is a Delaware corporation with its headquarters and principal place of business in the State of California. mBlox does business throughout the United States, including the State of California and this County.

JURISDICTION

- 11. This Court has jurisdiction over the causes of action asserted herein pursuant to the California Constitution, Article VI, §10, because this case is a cause not given by statute to other trial courts.
- 12. This Court has jurisdiction over Defendant pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section § 410.10 because Defendant resides in and/or conducts business in the State of California and/or many of Defendant's wrongful acts arose or emanated from California.

VENUE

13. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure § 395.5 because Defendant's principal place of business is in this County.

THE PROBLEM OF RECYLED DIRTY CELL PHONE NUMBERS

14. Cell phone customers are assigned unique phone numbers for their phones, just like traditional land-lines.

- 15. However, unlike traditional phones people can use cell phones to pay for certain third-party provided services, like, for example, "ringtones," subscriptions for horoscopes, jokes or stock quotes, sent periodically to customers' cell phones, etc. (A ringtone is simply the sound made by a telephone to indicate an incoming call. The term is most often used to refer to the customizable sounds available on mobile phones.)
- 16. These services generally renew automatically each month and the resulting charges are included on the customer's cell phone bill.
- 17, The instant lawsuit flows from what happens when a carrier reissues (or "recycles") a cellular number previously assigned to one of its customers that has been abandoned. (Customers abandon numbers for many different reasons, e.g. they move to a different area code, they change carriers, they no longer want one of their cell phones, or they want a different phone number.)
- 18. Defendant knows that these abandoned numbers are often encumbered with preexisting subscriptions to mobile content services thus rendering these numbers "dirty."
- 19. Nevertheless, specifically in order to bilk cell phone customers out of money, Defendant has refused to set up procedures to insure that cell phone customers are not charged for preexisting subscriptions authorized, if at all, by a previous owner or user of the number.
- Thus, when a telephone number is reassigned to a new customer, Defendant 20. continues to charge the new customer for subscriptions purchased by the old customers.

THE FACTS RELATING TO THE NAMED PLAINTIFF

- 21. On November 2, 2005, Plaintiff visited the store of an authorized T-Mobile sales representative located in Visalia, California to purchase new cell phone service for his personal use.
- 22. On that same day, in exchange for a T-Mobile cell phone plan of 600 "anytime" minutes, Plaintiff agreed to pay T-Mobile $39.99 each month for a period of 12 months. (A copy of T-Mobile's Service Agreement with Plaintiff is attached hereto as Exhibit A.)

- 23. T-Mobile's Service Agreement, including the documents referenced therein, are classic contracts of adhesion. That is, T-Mobile drafts the boilerplate terms including the purported class action waiver and arbitration clauses and offers them to potential customers purely on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Further, Mr. Bradberry did not see and was not given a copy of the "Terms and Conditions" referenced in the Service Agreement either prior to signing the agreement or at the time of signing.
- 24. Upon execution of his Service Agreement and activation of his cellular telephone account, T-Mobile provided Plaintiff a cellular phone number or "GSM #" (that is, a Global System for Mobile Communications number) of "tmo+619446----." (Redacted.)
- 25. Unbeknownst to Plaintiff, T-Mobile provided him with a recycled "dirty" phone number -- one saddled with preexisting obligations, encumbrances and billing arrangements for products and services provided by Defendant that were authorized to be purchased, if at all, by the previous owner(s) and/or user(s) of that number.
- 26. Thus, beginning on or about November 2, 2005 the same day Plaintiff obtained his cell phone number and started receiving service from T-Mobile and continuing through at least April 28, 2006, Plaintiff's cell phone received multiple unwanted "premium" text message calls on a near daily basis from Defendant and/or Defendant's client Cellfish Media, LLC f/k/a Lagadere Interactive North America, Inc. ("Cellfish"). Simultaneously, Plaintiff's cell phone account incurred multiple "premium" text message charges on a near daily basis from Defendant. "Premium" text messages are those that include various forms of software such as ringtones, or as in Plaintiff's case, a text message chatting service.
  - 27. Throughout the relevant period, Plaintiff received dozens of such messages.

consent to either Defendant's or its client Cellfish's sending of text messages to his cellular telephone.

29. Throughout the relevant time period, T-Mobile billed Plaintiff for "premium" text messaging charges of $0.50 for each of the incoming "premium" text messages

Defendant sent to Plaintiff, in addition to T-Mobile's standard charge of $0.05 per each said products and services provided by Defendant and its client and at no time did Plaintiff

At no time during the relevant period did Plaintiff authorize the purchase of

- 30. At no time did Plaintiff authorize T-Mobile, Defendant or anyone else to bill him for those charges.
- 31. Plaintiff's counsel later learned that the purported authorization to be billed for Defendant's charges was obtained from an unidentified person with the same "GSM #" eventually assigned by T-Mobile to Plaintiff ("tmo+6194468xxx"); however, the authorization for the subject charges was obtained on July 13, 2005 a date more than three months prior to the time that Plaintiff signed his Service Agreement with T-Mobile, obtained that same cell phone number, or started receiving cell phone service.
- 32. Plaintiff could not possibly have authorized the charges for which he was being billed. He did not have any account with T-Mobile at that time. Indeed, from May 2005 until October 2005, Plaintiff was out of the country in the Persian Gulf serving in the United States Navy aboard the U.S.S. Nimitz.

DEFENDANT BILLED AND COLLECTED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN UNAUTHORIZED MOBILE CONTENT CHARGES

33. Through mBlox's services, its end-to-end technology platform and other value-added services, it has become a one-stop shop for numerous third-party mobile content providers such as Cellfish, and carriers such as T-Mobile, empowering them to take advantage of wireless technology as a content delivery, marketing and communications channel, while carving out a role for itself as a very critical intermediary in this rapidly growing industry.

- In order to tap into the emerging wireless content marketplace and make 34. content services available to wireless consumers, content providers must first obtain access to wireless carriers' mobile communications networks and they frequently do so by "partnering" with intermediary companies such as mBlox that provide the content providers direct access to the carriers through existing relationships.
- mBlox has developed a vast distribution system that integrates into the 35. wireless networks of some of the largest wireless carriers nationwide, including Verizon, Cingular, Sprint Nextel, Alltel, US Cellular, among many others.
- While aggregators such as mBlox charge their content provider clients some 36. upfront fees, their revenue is primarily generated through a "revenue share" on transactions for which they bill the carriers' customers: each time a charge is incurred in connection with an alleged purchase of mobile content services offered by a content provider, the aggregator and the content provider cause the charge to be billed directly on the cellular telephone bill of the carrier's customer who currently owns and/or uses the telephone number claimed to be associated with the purchase.
- The carrier then bills and collects the charges from its current customer, 37. retains about 20% to 50% of the proceeds as its "revenue share" and then remits the balance to the aggregator, e.g., mBlox, who retains a percentage of the balance in the form of its own "revenue share" and then remits the balance to its content provider client, e.g., Cellfish.
- mBlox has registered hundreds of millions of transactions and processed 38. hundreds of millions of dollars in transactions over the years and has profited enormously from its arrangement with its carrier partners and its content provider partners.
- As Defendant knows, the carriers routinely "recycle" so-called "dirty" 39. telephone numbers to their customers when they sign up for new cellular telephone service.

The numbers are "dirty" in that they are encumbered with pre-existing billing obligations and subscriptions for products and services authorized to be purchased, if at all, by the previous owners and/or users of those numbers.

- Defendant has not only sanctioned this illegal billing, it has actively and 40. knowingly promoted it by, inter alia, actively negotiating and facilitating partnerships between and amongst each other and/or other carriers, aggregators and content providers wherein (1) the content providers and aggregators do not adequately verify whether a telephone number has been recycled; (2) the carriers do not adequately verify the details of the purported authorization to place charges on a cell phone customer's bill, including the identity of the person who supposedly consented to the service, the date such consent was obtained or the manner in which it was obtained; and/or (3) charges are illegally inserted into customers' billing statements for subscriptions authorized by previous owners of the telephone number.
- Defendant has intentionally helped create a system wherein each participant 41. has a piece of the information and thus can, at least, claim (false as it is) that the blame rests solely at the feet of another. Such system constitutes a deliberate and wilful scheme to cheat large numbers of people out of small amounts of money.
- As a direct result, Defendant has profited enormously from this illegal 42. practice, all the while being able to maintain plausible deniability.

CLASS ALLEGATIONS

- Plaintiff brings this action, pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure § 382 on 43. behalf of himself, a class and a subclass. Those classes are defined as follows:
- A. The "Class:" consisting of all wireless telephone subscribers in the nation who were charged by mBlox for mobile content services not authorized by the existing owner of the telephone number, but, rather, if at all, by a prior owner or user of the number;

provided, however, that the following are excluded from this proposed Class: (i) the defendant, and (ii) any relative or employee of defendant.

- B. The "Sub-Class:" a class consisting of all members of the Class who entered into subscription contracts within the state of California.
- The Classes each consist of thousands of individuals and other entities, 44. making joinder impractical, in satisfaction of Code of Civil Procedure § 382.
- The claims of Plaintiff are typical of the claims of all of the other members of 45. the respective Classes.
- Plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the 46. other members of the respective classes. Plaintiff has retained counsel with substantial experience in prosecuting complex litigation and class actions. Plaintiff and his counsel are committed to vigorously prosecuting this action on behalf of the members of the classes, and have the financial resources to do so. Neither Plaintiff nor his counsel have any interest adverse to those of the other members of the Classes.
- Absent a class action, most members of the Classes would find the cost of 47. litigating their claims to be prohibitive, and will have no effective remedy. The class treatment of common questions of law and fact is also superior to multiple individual actions or piecemeal litigation in that it conserves the resources of the courts and the litigants, and promotes consistency and efficiency of adjudication.
- Defendant has acted and failed to act on grounds generally applicable to the 48. Plaintiff and the other members of the respective classes, requiring the Court's imposition of uniform relief to ensure compatible standards of conduct toward the members of the Classes.
- The factual and legal bases of Defendant's liability to Plaintiff and to the other 49. members of the respective Classes are the same, resulting in injury to the Plaintiff and to all of the other members of the Classes. Plaintiff and the other Class members have all suffered harm and damages as a result of Defendant's unlawful and wrongful conduct.

- There are many questions of law and fact common to the claims of Plaintiff 50. and the other members of the respective Classes, and those questions predominate over any questions that may affect individual members of the Classes. Common questions for the Class include but are not limited to the following:
  - Whether mBlox has unjustly received money belonging to Plaintiff (a) and the Class and whether under principles of equity and good conscience, mBlox should not be permitted to retain it;
  - Whether mBlox tortiously interfered with Plaintiff's and the Class's (b) contracts with their wireless carriers by causing them to be charged for products and services by their carrier that were authorized, if at all, by the previous owner and/or user of their telephone number.
  - 51. Common questions for the Sub-Class include:
  - Whether mBlox's conduct described herein violates California (a) Business and Professions Code sections 17200, et seq.

- Defendant knew of these contractual relationships and intended to and did 58. induce a breach or disruption of the contractual relationships.

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Russell Bradberry ("Bradberry"), on behalf of himself, a class and a subclass, brings this class action against mBlox, Inc. ("mBlox") seeking to stop Defendant's practice of causing cellular telephone customers to be billed for mobile content services that the customers did not order, and to obtain redress for all persons injured by their conduct. Plaintiff, for his class action complaint, alleges as follows upon personal knowledge as to himself and his own acts and experiences, and, as to all other matters, upon information and belief, including investigation conducted by his attorneys.

NATURE OF THE CASE

- 1. The increased use of cell phones has given rise to a new industry that provides so-called "mobile content" services such as ringtones, text alerts, jokes, news, games, and daily horoscopes to cell phone users' mobile devices. The providers of mobile content (the mobile "content providers") charge for their services and cause such charges to be placed directly on customers' cell phone accounts through their wireless carriers (the "carriers"). The carriers then bill and collect such amounts, serving as partners in these transactions, retaining a portion of all revenue that they collect on account of mobile content services,
- 2. Because mobile content providers are typically unable to establish a direct billing and content delivery relationship with the carriers, they most often turn to one of a handful of companies known in the industry as "aggregators," such as mBlox, that act as billing intermediaries without whom the mobile content providers would generally be unable to provide and bill for their mobile content services.
- 3. While aggregators such as mBlox charge their content provider clients some upfront fees, their revenue is primarily generated through a "revenue share" on transactions for which they bill the carriers' customers: each time a charge is incurred in connection with an alleged purchase of mobile content services offered by a content provider, the aggregator and the content provider cause the charge to be billed directly on the cellular telephone bill of the carrier's customer who currently owns and/or uses the telephone number claimed to be associated with that purchase.

- 4. The carrier then bills and collects the charges from its current customer, retains about 20% to 50% of the proceeds as its "revenue share" and then remits the balance to the aggregator, i.e., mBlox, who retains a percentage of the balance in the form of its own "revenue share" and who then remits the balance to its content provider client.
- 5. In a widespread industry practice little known by those outside the industry, but known to Defendant, carriers such as AT&T Mobility, LLC d/b/a Cingular Wireless ("Cingular"), Cellco Partnership d/b/a Verizon Wireless ("Verizon"), Sprint-Nextel Corporation ("Sprint") and T-Mobile USA, Inc. ("T-Mobile"), among many others, routinely "recycle" so-called "dirty" telephone numbers to their customers when they sign up for new cellular telephone service. The numbers are "recycled" in that they were previously owned and/or used by other persons or entities. The numbers are "dirty" in that they are encumbered with pre-existing billing obligations for products and services authorized to be purchased, if at all, by the previous owners and/or users of those numbers.
- б. Despite its knowledge about the problem of recycled dirty numbers, Defendant has helped create a system through which cell phone users are billed for mobile content services ordered not by them, but by the previous owners of their cell phone numbers.
- 7. As a result, for years Defendant has systematically, repeatedly and without authorization caused charges to be placed on the cell phone bills of thousands of consumers across the country for content that was never authorized to be purchased by the current owners of the affected phone numbers, but rather, if at all, by the previous owners of such cell phone numbers, and it has profited enormously from its wrongful conduct, in violation of: (a) the common law of unjust enrichment; (b) the common law of tortious interference with a contract; and (c) in violation of California Business and Professions Code section 17200 consumer fraud provisions.

8. Plaintiff seeks on behalf of himself and the class members, money damages, disgorgement, injunctive and declaratory relief, costs, and reasonable attorney's fees.

PARTIES

- 9. Plaintiff Russell Bradberry is a citizen of California.
- 10. Defendant mBlox, Inc. ("mBlox"), known in the industry as an "aggregator," is a provider of mobile payments processing and is self-described as the "world's largest mobile transactions network." mBlox is a Delaware corporation with its headquarters and principal place of business in the State of California. mBlox does business throughout the United States, including the State of California and this County.

JURISDICTION

- 11. This Court has jurisdiction over the causes of action asserted herein pursuant to the California Constitution, Article VI, §10, because this case is a cause not given by statute to other trial courts.
- 12. This Court has jurisdiction over Defendant pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section § 410.10 because Defendant resides in and/or conducts business in the State of California and/or many of Defendant's wrongful acts arose or emanated from California.

VENUE

13. Venue is proper in this Court pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure § 395.5 because Defendant's principal place of business is in this County.

THE PROBLEM OF RECYLED DIRTY CELL PHONE NUMBERS

14. Cell phone customers are assigned unique phone numbers for their phones, just like traditional land-lines.

- 15. However, unlike traditional phones people can use cell phones to pay for certain third-party provided services, like, for example, "ringtones," subscriptions for horoscopes, jokes or stock quotes, sent periodically to customers' cell phones, etc. (A ringtone is simply the sound made by a telephone to indicate an incoming call. The term is most often used to refer to the customizable sounds available on mobile phones.)
- 16. These services generally renew automatically each month and the resulting charges are included on the customer's cell phone bill.
- 17. The instant lawsuit flows from what happens when a carrier reissues (or "recycles") a cellular number previously assigned to one of its customers that has been abandoned. (Customers abandon numbers for many different reasons, e.g. they move to a different area code, they change carriers, they no longer want one of their cell phones, or they want a different phone number.)
- 18. Defendant knows that these abandoned numbers are often encumbered with preexisting subscriptions to mobile content services thus rendering these numbers "dirty,"
- 19. Nevertheless, specifically in order to bilk cell phone customers out of money, Defendant has refused to set up procedures to insure that cell phone customers are not charged for preexisting subscriptions authorized, if at all, by a previous owner or user of the number.
- 20. Thus, when a telephone number is reassigned to a new customer. Defendant continues to charge the new customer for subscriptions purchased by the old customers.

THE FACTS RELATING TO THE NAMED PLAINTIFF

- 21. On November 2, 2005, Plaintiff visited the store of an authorized T-Mobile sales representative located in Visalia, California to purchase new cell phone service for his personal use.
- 22. On that same day, in exchange for a T-Mobile cell phone plan of 600 "anytime" minutes, Plaintiff agreed to pay T-Mobile $39.99 each month for a period of 12 months. (A copy of T-Mobile's Service Agreement with Plaintiff is attached hereto as Exhibit A.)

- 23. T-Mobile's Service Agreement, including the documents referenced therein; are classic contracts of adhesion. That is, T-Mobile drafts the boilerplate terms including the purported class action waiver and arbitration clauses and offers them to potential customers purely on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Further, Mr. Bradberry did not see and was not given a copy of the "Terms and Conditions" referenced in the Service Agreement either prior to signing the agreement or at the time of signing.
- 24. Upon execution of his Service Agreement and activation of his cellular telephone account, T-Mobile provided Plaintiff a cellular phone number or "GSM #" (that is, a Global System for Mobile Communications number) of "tmo+619446----." (Redacted.)
- 25. Unbeknownst to Plaintiff, T-Mobile provided him with a recycled "dirty" phone number -- one saddled with preexisting obligations, encumbrances and billing arrangements for products and services provided by Defendant that were authorized to be purchased, if at all, by the previous owner(s) and/or user(s) of that number.
- 26. Thus, beginning on or about November 2, 2005 -- the same day Plaintiff obtained his cell phone number and started receiving service from T-Mobile -- and continuing through at least April 28, 2006, Plaintiff's cell phone received multiple unwanted "premium" text message calls on a near daily basis from Defendant and/or Defendant's client Cellfish Media, LLC f/k/a Lagadere Interactive North America, Inc. ("Cellfish"). Simultaneously, Plaintiff's cell phone account incurred multiple "premium" text message charges on a near daily basis from Defendant. "Premium" text messages are those that include various forms of software such as ringtones, or as in Plaintiff's case, a text message chatting service.
  - 27. Throughout the relevant period, Plaintiff received dozens of such messages.

Case 4:07-cv-05298-CW

- 28. At no time during the relevant period did Plaintiff authorize the purchase of said products and services provided by Defendant and its client and at no time did Plaintiff consent to either Defendant's or its client Cellfish's sending of text messages to his cellular telephone.
- 29. Throughout the relevant time period, T-Mobile billed Plaintiff for "premium" text messaging charges of $0.50 for each of the incoming "premium" text messages Defendant sent to Plaintiff, in addition to T-Mobile's standard charge of $0.05 per each incoming text message.
- 30. At no time did Plaintiff authorize T-Mobile, Defendant or anyone else to bill him for those charges.
- 31. Plaintiff's counsel later learned that the purported authorization to be billed for Defendant's charges was obtained from an unidentified person with the same "GSM #" eventually assigned by T-Mobile to Plaintiff ("tmo+6194468xxx"); however, the authorization for the subject charges was obtained on July 13, 2005 - a date more than three months prior to the time that Plaintiff signed his Service Agreement with T-Mobile, obtained that same cell phone number, or started receiving cell phone service.
- 32. Plaintiff could not possibly have authorized the charges for which he was being billed. He did not have any account with T-Mobile at that time. Indeed, from May 2005 until October 2005, Plaintiff was out of the country in the Persian Gulf serving in the United States Navy aboard the U.S.S. Nimitz.

DEFENDANT BILLED AND COLLECTED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN UNAUTHORIZED MOBILE CONTENT CHARGES

Through mBlox's services, its end-to-end technology platform and other 33. value-added services, it has become a one-stop shop for numerous third-party mobile content providers such as Cellfish, and carriers such as T-Mobile, empowering them to take advantage of wireless technology as a content delivery, marketing and communications channel, while carving out a role for itself as a very critical intermediary in this rapidly growing industry.

- In order to tap into the emerging wireless content marketplace and make 34. content services available to wireless consumers, content providers must first obtain access to wireless carriers' mobile communications networks and they frequently do so by "partnering" with intermediary companies such as mBlox that provide the content providers direct access to the carriers through existing relationships.
- mBlox has developed a vast distribution system that integrates into the 35. wireless networks of some of the largest wireless carriers nationwide, including Verizon, Cingular, Sprint Nextel, Alltel, US Cellular, among many others.
- 36. While aggregators such as mBlox charge their content provider clients some upfront fees, their revenue is primarily generated through a "revenue share" on transactions for which they bill the carriers' customers: each time a charge is incurred in connection with an alleged purchase of mobile content services offered by a content provider, the aggregator and the content provider cause the charge to be billed directly on the cellular telephone bill of the carrier's customer who currently owns and/or uses the telephone number claimed to be associated with the purchase.
- The carrier then bills and collects the charges from its current customer, 37. retains about 20% to 50% of the proceeds as its "revenue share" and then remits the balance to the aggregator, e.g., mBlox, who retains a percentage of the balance in the form of its own "revenue share" and then remits the balance to its content provider client, e.g., Cellfish.
- 38. mBlox has registered hundreds of millions of transactions and processed hundreds of millions of dollars in transactions over the years and has profited enormously from its arrangement with its carrier partners and its content provider partners.
- As Defendant knows, the carriers routinely "recycle" so-called "dirty" 39, telephone numbers to their customers when they sign up for new cellular telephone service.

The numbers are "recycled" in that they were previously owned and/or used by other persons or entities. The numbers are "dirty" in that they are encumbered with pre-existing billing obligations and subscriptions for products and services authorized to be purchased, if at all, by the previous owners and/or users of those numbers.

- 40. Defendant has not only sanctioned this illegal billing, it has actively and knowingly promoted it by, inter alia, actively negotiating and facilitating partnerships between and amongst each other and/or other carriers, aggregators and content providers wherein (1) the content providers and aggregators do not adequately verify whether a telephone number has been recycled; (2) the carriers do not adequately verify the details of the purported authorization to place charges on a cell phone customer's bill, including the identity of the person who supposedly consented to the service, the date such consent was obtained or the manner in which it was obtained; and/or (3) charges are illegally inserted into customers' billing statements for subscriptions authorized by previous owners of the telephone number.
- 41. Defendant has intentionally helped create a system wherein each participant has a piece of the information and thus can, at least, claim (false as it is) that the blame rests solely at the feet of another. Such system constitutes a deliberate and wilful scheme to cheat large numbers of people out of small amounts of money.
- 42. As a direct result, Defendant has profited enormously from this illegal practice, all the while being able to maintain plausible deniability.

CLASS ALLEGATIONS

- 43. Plaintiff brings this action, pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure § 382 on behalf of himself, a class and a subclass. Those classes are defined as follows:
- A. The "Class:" consisting of all wireless telephone subscribers in the nation who were charged by mBlox for mobile content services not authorized by the existing owner of the telephone number, but, rather, if at all, by a prior owner or user of the number;

provided, however, that the following are excluded from this proposed Class: (i) the defendant, and (ii) any relative or employee of defendant.

- B. The "Sub-Class:" a class consisting of all members of the Class who entered into subscription contracts within the state of California.
- 44. The Classes each consist of thousands of individuals and other entities, making joinder impractical, in satisfaction of Code of Civil Procedure § 382.
- The claims of Plaintiff are typical of the claims of all of the other members of 45. the respective Classes.
- Plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the 46. other members of the respective classes. Plaintiff has retained counsel with substantial experience in prosecuting complex litigation and class actions. Plaintiff and his counsel are committed to vigorously prosecuting this action on behalf of the members of the classes, and have the financial resources to do so. Neither Plaintiff nor his counsel have any interest adverse to those of the other members of the Classes.
- Absent a class action, most members of the Classes would find the cost of 47. litigating their claims to be prohibitive, and will have no effective remedy. The class treatment of common questions of law and fact is also superior to multiple individual actions or piecemeal litigation in that it conserves the resources of the courts and the litigants, and promotes consistency and efficiency of adjudication.
- 48. Defendant has acted and failed to act on grounds generally applicable to the Plaintiff and the other members of the respective classes, requiring the Court's imposition of uniform relief to ensure compatible standards of conduct toward the members of the Classes.
- The factual and legal bases of Defendant's liability to Plaintiff and to the other 49. members of the respective Classes are the same, resulting in injury to the Plaintiff and to all of the other members of the Classes. Plaintiff and the other Class members have all suffered harm and damages as a result of Defendant's unlawful and wrongful conduct.

Class	s include	but are not limited to the following:

- Whether mBlox has unjustly received money belonging to Plaintiff (a) and the Class and whether under principles of equity and good conscience, mBlox should not be permitted to retain it;
- Whether mBlox tortiously interfered with Plaintiff's and the Class's (b) contracts with their wireless carriers by causing them to be charged for products and services by their carrier that were authorized, if at all, by the previous owner and/or user of their telephone number.
- Common questions for the Sub-Class include: 51.
- Whether mBlox's conduct described herein violates California (a) Business and Professions Code sections 17200, et seq.

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION INFORMATION SHEET / CIVIL DIVISION

Document 1-3

Many cases can be resolved to the satisfaction of all parties without the necessity of traditional litigation, which can be expensive, time consuming, and stressful. The Court finds that it is in the best interests of the parties that they participate in alternatives to traditional litigation, including arbitration, mediation, neutral evaluation, special masters and referees, and settlement conferences. Therefore, all matters shall be referred to an appropriate form of Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) before they are set for trial, unless there is good cause to dispense with the ADR requirement.

What is ADR?

ADR is the general term for a wide variety of dispute resolution processes that are alternatives to litigation. Types of ADR processes include mediation, arbitration, neutral evaluation, special masters and referees, and settlement conferences, among others forms.

What are the advantages of choosing ADR instead of litigation?

ADR can have a number of advantages over litigation:

- ADR can save time. A dispute can be resolved in a matter of months, or even weeks, while litigation can take years.
- ADR can save money. Attorney's fees, court costs, and expert fees can be reduced or avoided altogether.
- ADR provides more participation. Parties have more opportunities with ADR to express their interests and concerns, instead of focusing exclusively on legal rights.
- ADR provides more control and flexibility. Parties can choose the ADR process that is most likely to bring a satisfactory resolution to their dispute.
- ADR can reduce stress. ADR encourages cooperation and communication; while discouraging the adversarial atmosphere of litigation. Surveys of parties who have participated in an ADR process have found much greater satisfaction than with parties who have gone through litigation.

What are the main forms of ADR offered by the Court?

- Mediation is an informal, confidential process in which a neutral party (the mediator) assists the parties in understanding their own interests, the interests of the other parties, and the practical and legal realities they all face. The mediator then helps the parties to explore options and arrive at a mutually acceptable resolution of the dispute. The mediator does not decide the dispute. The parties do.
- Mediation may be appropriate when:
  - The parties want a non-adversary procedure
  - The parties have a continuing business or personal relationship
  - Communication problems are interfering with a resolution
  - There is an emotional element involved
  - The parties are interested in an injunction, consent decree, or other form of equitable relief

Arbitration is a normally informal process in which the neutral (the arbitrator) decides the dispute after bearing the evidence and arguments of the parties. The parties can agree to binding or non-binding arbitration. Binding arbitration is designed to give the parties a resolution of their dispute when they cannot agree by themselves or with a mediator. If the arbitration is non-binding, any party can reject the arbitrator's decision and request a trial.

Arbitration may be appropriate when:

- The action is for personal injury, property damage, or breach of contract.
- Only modetary damages are sought
- Witness testimony, under outh, is desired
- An advisory opinion is sought from an experienced litigator (if a non-binding arbitration)
- Neutral evaluation is an informal process in which a neutral party (the evaluator) reviews the case with counsel and gives a non-binding assessment of the strengths and weaknesses on each side and the likely outcome. The neutral can help parties to identify issues, prepare stipulations, and draft discovery plans. The parties may use the neutral's evaluation to discuss settlement.

Neutral evaluation may be appropriate when:

- < The parties are far apart in their view of the law or value of the case.
- The case involves a technical issue in which the evaluator has expertise
- Case planning assistance would be helpful and would save legal fees and costs
- < The parties are interested in an injunction, consent decree, or other form of equitable relief
- Special masters and referees are neutral parties who may be appointed by the court to obtain information or to make specific fact findings that may lead to a resolution of a dispute.

Special masters and referees can be particularly effective in complex cases with a number of parties, like construction disputes.

Settlement conferences are informal processes in which the neutral (a judge or an experienced attorney) meets with the parties or their attorneys, hears the facts of the dispute, and normally suggests a resolution that the parties may accept or use as a basis for further negotiations.

Settlement conferences can be effective when the authority or expertise of the judge or experienced attorney may help the parties reach a resolution.

What kind of disputes can be resolved by ADR?

Although some disputes must go to court, almost any dispute can be resolved through ADR. This includes disputes involving business matters; civil rights; corporations; construction; consumer protection; contracts; copyrights; defamation; disabilities; discrimination; employment; environmental problems; harassment; health care; housing; insurance; intellectual property; labor; landlord/tenant; media; medical malpractice and other professional negligence; neighborhood problems; partnerships; patents; personal injury; probate; product liability; property damage; real estate; securities; and sports, among other matters.
